DEATH IN WELL-GUARDED PRISON

Sacco Proclaims His Innocence To The Very Last Minute

VANZETTI VERY CALM

Two Follow Madeiros To The Electric Chair Just Before Midnight

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
BOSTON, Aug. 23.—Sacco and Vanzetti are dead—but the hue and cry of their dramatic passing rang around the world today.

The end of seven years' fight for life by these convicted radicals—a fight unprecedented in American criminal procedure and unprecedented, too, in its effect on world opinion—came in the eerie hours of this morning in drab old Charlestown Prison.

Whining sing-song of an electric current whipped through their bodies and burned out their lives while the guns of 2200 police encircled them to make sure they did not escape Massachusetts justice.

Nothing like it was ever witnessed in an American city. The streets of Boston and other cities saw marching and near-rioting in sympathy with them. From Kamchatka to Rio the radicals of the world protested the innocence of the condemned men and demanded their liberation. In London, Paris, Berlin and Moscow there were riotous demonstrations against America—but they died just the same in grim old Charlestown Prison hard by the monument on Bunker Hill, and today their bodies lay on marble slabs in the North Grove mortuary.

To the radicals of the world and to their sympathizers among the intellectuals, Sacco and Vanzetti were symbols of legalistic and capitalistic oppression and martyrs to the cause of political liberalism.

To the law of Massachusetts, stern and unyielding as the rock of Plymouth, they were a pair of anarchistic aliens who had perpetrated an unusually brutal crime in the murder of a factory paymaster and his guard at South Braintree, and who for seven years have managed to escape paying the penalty therefor.

They died as they lived—defiant, contemptuous of the "system" that took their lives, unrepentant, unorthodox, and protesting their innocence to the end. They went to the chair with their heads up, their tread firm, unafraid and without benefit of clergy.

Sacco died almost with "long live anarchy" upon his lips. Vanzetti, older, more kindly, philosophical, proclaimed his innocence while seated in the chair, and was pronouncing his forgiveness of his enemies when the guards stepped back and signalled for the fatal current.

"I am innocent of all crime," said Vanzetti, without attempting theatrical gestures. "Not only of this one, but all."

He spoke simply, in a quiet voice, as if he had said, "I am tired. I lay back quietly and waited for death." Not so Sacco. Younger, more volatile and impetuous, his first cry upon entering the death chamber was,
"Long live Anarchy!" and his last,
"Farewell, my mother!"

Preceding them to the chair was Celestino Madeiros, a Portuguese bank bandit, who killed a cashier in the act of holding up the place. Oddly enough, Madeiros had confessed to the same murder for which Sacco and Vanzetti were executed and his confession exonerated the two radicals.
But the law of Massachusetts refused to believe him.

Phlegmatic and sullen, seemingly indifferent to his fate, Madeiros had eaten everything that came his way

St. Ann's Grid Team Given First Practice

Sunday morning on St. Ann's field, "Don" Dougherty, who is serving his fourth year as coach for St. Ann's football team, put 20 regulars and 20 substitutes through an extensive workout, and appeared to be well satisfied with the manner in which his recruits "did their stuff."

The backfield will be the same as last year, consisting of S. Moffo, P.
Pieo, F. Pieo, Sabatini, Paletta, Seneca and Spadacino, the last two being additions and letter men at Bristol High.

On the ends will be Gilardi and Pope, with Missera and Stallone as subs.

The only regular missing on the line will be Riola, who is out on account of an injured arm, but his position at center will be filled by either Missera, last year's sub, or De Risi, a Bristol High player, or Rago, a graduate of Bristol High. The other line men are D. Greco, B. Greco, B. Moffo, L. Spinnella, B. Paul, B. Missera, P.
Straffe, F. Marino and T. Ballie.

The first game is being scheduled for Sunday, September 18th, with the Frankford Cornells, if possible. And the Trenton Kents and other similar teams are being booked to come here and oppose St. Ann's team. "Don" Dougherty, after the workout yesterday, predicted a "best ever" season this year.

Another work-out is scheduled for tonight, and all aspirants are urged by Coach Dougherty to be on hand early so as to get all the various plays down pat.

AVIATION COMMISSION ORGANIZES TOMORROW

Tentative Schedules Are Being Prepared for Their Work

BRISTOL MAN A MEMBER

By William B. Brown

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 23 (I.N.S.) —Members of the State Aviation Commission which will meet here tomorrow for organization, today are drafting tentative schedules which they hope they will be able to act upon at the first meeting.

Although the first session is primarily for the purpose of effecting a formal organization of the Commission so that it will be able to function in accordance with the provisions of the act creating it, the members hope to be able to get started on the large amount of detail work which must be done as soon as possible.

The present increasing interest in aviation with practically every community in the state hoping to establish airports necessitates quick action on the formulation of rules and standards, members said.

The act as introduced by Rep. Elwood Turner, Chester, was drawn to give the commission wide powers in the administration of all matters pertaining to aviation. The measure met with practically no opposition and was signed by Governor John S. Fisher in much the same form in which it was introduced.

It is expected that the organization will take but a short time and that the commission will be able to devote the major portion of the Wednesday afternoon session to details which will be presented.

The act provides that James F.
Woodward, Secretary of Internal Affairs, shall be chairman ex-officio. In addition, a secretary will be elected.
Although it is not necessary that a member of the commission act as secretary, it is expected that Howard Rigby, Pittsburgh, executive Secretary of the Royal Flying Corps during the war, will be named.

Necessity of speedy action on as much detail as possible was mentioned as a necessity by members of the commission because its personnel comes from various sections of the state, and frequent meetings will be difficult.

Edgar N. Gott, president of Keystone Aircraft Corporation of Bristol, is a member of the Commission.

Display of Gladiolas Attracting Many Here

A wonderful display of gladiolas is to be seen at the store of Clarence W.
Winter, Mill and Wood streets. The blooms are from the gardens of Arthur Seyfert and in the opinion of many it is the finest collection ever shown here.

The colors are varied and the blooms are exceptionally large. The flowers have been on exhibition since Friday and have been viewed by a large number of people.

Mr. Seyfert has extensive gardens at Edgely and is among the largest growers of gladiolas in this section.
He will have an exhibit at the annual exhibition of the Bristol Dahlia and Flower Association.

INJURES HIS FOOT

John Cunningham, of 2076 Allegheny avenue, Philadelphia, suffered an injured foot after he stepped upon a fish hook at Croydon late Sunday.
He was treated at the Harriman Hospital and Mr. Cunningham was able to return to his home. The Philadelphian was visiting in Croydon when the accident occurred.

When The Firemen Wake Up (EDITORIAL)

THE surprising lack of substance in the recent platform announcements of the Independent candidates for Borough Council invites further examination of the procedure followed by their sponsors in the present campaign, with the idea of discovering just what motives have guided them in the course they have plotted. It may be possible thereby to get a more accurate measure of their sincerity as to the fire defense question, which they have schemed to make the chief issue of this Primary contest.

Indeed, the fire defense question, already settled in accord with the most experienced judgment prevailing throughout the country, in the best interests of the taxpayers, and in line with the precedent established by all other growing and progressive communities, is the only item in the Independent platform which is not threadbare with usage and monotonous from repetition.

But are those who are behind this opposition really and sincerely interested in the fire defense question, or is it merely a convenient political device—a smoke screen with which to mislead the members of the old volunteer companies and thus bring them behind a program, the real purposes of which have not been divulged?

The promoters of the Independent movement have asserted that their one real object in this contest is to nominate and elect members of Council who will join in efforts to repeal the ordinance consolidating the volunteer fire department in a centrally located fire station. But at the same time, and virtually in the same breath, they emphasize the fact that they have put a complete ticket into the field in each of the six Wards of the Borough. Isn't there something very significant in this latter act—something that throws real light upon their actual purposes?

A survey of the course followed by the regular Republicans, with regard to the lesser offices to be voted upon in the approaching Primary, will show that in every case except where there has been a vacancy to be filled, they have followed their usual custom of recognizing worthy service by supporting the present occupants of those offices for nomination and re-election.

The Independents have done the direct opposite. In each Ward they have entered candidates for assessors, judges and inspectors of elections, school directors, etc.

How do these offices relate, even in a remote way, to the repeal of an existing ordinance? Every voter in the town knows that the adoption or the repeal of an ordinance is a matter confined wholly to members of Borough Council and the Burgess.

Yet the Independents, who assert that the fire defense question is the real issue of this contest, are opposing men who had and have nothing whatever to do with that matter, and behind it as smoke screen are endeavoring to put their own candidates into those offices.

Is there anything real or sincere in all their declamations about the fire defense matter, after all? They are attempting to nominate and elect assessors, for instance; yet we all know that assessors not only have nothing whatever to do with the ordinances of Council, but can in no way be an issue in this campaign, for the reason that the County Commissioners have established valuations which probably will stand for years.

Are these perennial promoters of the Independent movement in fact at all interested in the fire defense matter, or are they merely employing it, as we have said, as a smoke screen, behind which to use the volunteer firemen to help them grab jobs and perquisites and control of the Borough Government, with its $80,000 annual General Fund, and $55,000 from the Water Department?

Are the citizens of Bristol willing to hand over control of these things to those who for years have been manufacturing one fake issue after another, in their efforts to supplant business administration with political administration?

Are they going to vote blindly and foolishly in the approaching Primary?

Isn't it perfectly clear—and hasn't it been for years—that the one aim of these promoters of so-called Independent campaigns is to get control of the Borough Government, its offices, its pay-rolls and all its expenditures, for their own political purposes?

The fire defense question an issue? When are the firemen going to wake up?

When are they going to realize that they are merely being used as catspaws to pull political chestnuts out of the fire for scheming individuals who are concerned only with their own ends?

the amazement of the hundreds of spectators who held their breath as they watched him climb.

Upon arriving at the top of the building "The Human Fly" will balance himself on a chair and then climb down the building. The performance is scheduled for 7.30 p. m., tomorrow.

Twilight League To Stage A 3-Game Series Beginning

CONDITIONS ACCEPTED

A meeting of the Twilight Baseball League was held recently at the office of the president, David Landrecht, when plans were laid to decide the local baseball championship.

It was decided to play a three game series between the Keystone Aircraft team, the winners of the first half, and Bristol Field Club, the second half champions.

The first game will be played on Saturday, August 27th; second game, Sunday, September 3rd; and the third game, if necessary, Saturday, September 10th.

Games will commence at three o'clock and each team previous to the practice.

All balls will be furnished by the league, and the games will be played at Leedom's Field.

S. K. Runyan, manager of the T. L. league the use of the field for these games and a collection will be taken.

The winners will share 60% of the receipts while the losers will receive 40%.

Philadelphian Injured In Accident At Parkland

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Aug. 23.— A Philadelphian is at present suffering in the Frankford Hospital with a fractured skull, the result of an automobile accident which occurred at Parkland, a short distance below here this morning at two o'clock.

The injured is: Walter Jeffries, who was enroute to his home.

The accident occurred when a touring car, owned and operated by Fred G. Taylor, 1308 Park avenue, Philadelphia, turned out of the line of traffic to avoid striking a car that had suddenly stopped just ahead. In turning out the car driven by Taylor struck a coupe operated by George S.
Foster, 48 New Cedar Lane, Trenton, which was traveling east on the Lincoln Highway.

After these two cars came together they were struck by a sedan which was traveling toward Philadelphia.
The sedan was operated by Maurice Mund, of the Clinton Hotel, Philadelphia.

Only one of the occupants of the machines involved in the triple-collision was seriously injured, Jeffries.
Jeffries was riding in the touring car, driven by Taylor.

The injured one was rushed to the Frankford Hospital, where it was stated his condition is serious. The other occupants of the three cars sustained slight cuts and bruises.

Mund, driver of the car that plowed into the other two machines, was placed under arrest by Corporal Welsh, of the State Highway Patrol, located here.

Mund was taken before Squire Alvey, of Woodbourne, where he was placed under $500 bail to await the outcome of Jeffries' injuries.

Leaves $150 for Flowers On His and Wife's Grave

(Special to Courier) DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 23.—The will and a codicil of the late Ernest E.
Rieker, Trenton state house clerk, who murdered his wife and mortally wounded Sheriff Abram L. Kulp, of Bucks County, was admitted to probate in the Register of Wills office here yesterday.

Dated two days after he murdered his wife, Helen Rieker, at their home in Oakhurst, South Langhorne, it is directed in the will that the executor be given $150 in trust, the income to be used for the purchase of flowers to be placed on the graves of his wife, his mother and his own grave on each holiday as long as the fund shall last, and that it be his wish that his wife be interred in the family plot at Riverside Cemetery, Trenton, N. J., and that he be interred by her side.

Rieker committed suicide in the Bucks County Prison on July 19, this year. The will was evidently written and witnessed while Rieker was in a Spring Lake, N. J., hospital the day after he had fired two bullets into his own body in his first unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide.

The will directs that Rieker's dwelling house worth $7500 in South Langhorne, be given to his father, Tobias Rieker, of Roebeling, and that the radio set in the house be given to John G.
Rieker, of 909 Hamilton avenue, Trenton, a brother, who is also named executor of the will.

It is also Rieker's will that his sister, Anna Steen, of Trenton, adopt his minor daughter, Doris Rieker. The balance of the estate is to be placed in trust, the income to be used for the support, education and maintenance of his daughter, and that the balance of the estate be turned over to her when she becomes twenty-one.

To the will was attached a codicil dated March 19, 1927, written on a piece of paper that was captioned "Ann May Memorial Hospital," Spring Lake, N. J.

"I have arranged with my sister, Anna Steen, to legally adopt my daughter, Doris M. Rieker," the codicil directs. "She is to have her own bed room suite which was given to me by my dear and beloved father as a wedding present, also the best rug in our home and the bridge lamp for her room."

"I also wish her name changed from Doris May to Doris Marie Rieker, the latter being my dear mother's name."

"In case this adoption does not take place and my daughter remains in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D.
Oakley at South Langhorne; in that event I wish all my real and personal property to be sold at private or public auction immediately after my death, also all real and personal property belonging to my wife, including her house hold goods, wearing apparel and jewelry and automobile, and the money derived from the sale, divided among my brother and sisters who are living."

Rieker bequeathed all his personal wearing apparel to his nephews, John and Thomas Gallery, of Roebeling, N. J.

LIFE IS MORE COMPLEX

In 1879 there were 252 names in the telephone directory for New York City. The telephone was then in its infancy. Today the Bell telephone system alone has 15,906,550 telephones in use in the United States. Just another case where yesterday's luxury is today's necessity.

Forty-eight years ago the telephone was even more of a curiosity than a luxury. The wealthy installed it in their homes for much the same reason that they collected curios and antiques. The instrument was not dependable and the system was too small to be of much value. In 1926 there were fifty-five million calls a day on Bell system phones alone. It is difficult to see how society could get along without the telephone today, although the world got along very well without it only a half century ago. The explanation lies in the fact that the telephone constitutes a vital and complex system in a complex society.

It may only be a coincidence that there is one telephone and one automobile for every six people in the United States. And it may also be a coincidence that the history of the motor car paralleled that of the telephone in that the former also began its career as an invention, then became a curiosity and a luxury, and is now a necessity.

Those who have any reasons for concealing their age should never make the grave mistake of calling the telephone and automobile luxuries.

DISCRIMINATION

Though patriotic orators speak of this democratic country as being probably the only one in the world that has broken down class barriers, no one believes them for everyone is suffering from concurrent attacks of superiority and inferiority complexes. Everybody is out of the class of somebody else in the opinion of both. Between the pauper to the multi-millionaire there are as many social strata as there were tongues at the Tower of Babel.

The war exposed the insuperable barriers of rank in the military service to the eyes of the world, but beyond this there was in this country until recently no aristocracy that could be termed official. Congress is blamed for creating a new official aristocracy.

This official aristocracy is comprised of the personnel of the consular and diplomatic service. And they became such when congress granted them a pension far in excess of the maximum for other federal employees.

The maximum retired pay of any worker in the governmental departments at Washington is $1,000, and no one may receive more no matter how important a position he or she may have filled or how long he or she has filled it. But for the foreign service there is no such limitation of retirement pay. After thirty years' service those in the higher positions may receive a pension as high as $5,400 a year.

Only the committees which reported the pension bills can explain this disparity and why one class of public servants was favored over all others. But no explanations have been forthcoming from them. This may be due to the fact that the discrimination has just come to public attention.

SOUTH LANGHORNE

On Saturday noon the fire company was called to a fire when a truck caught fire at Hulmeville avenue and Lincoln Highway. The truck loaded with cardboard was owned by the Constainer Corporation of Manayunk. The driver's cab was completely damaged as was the motor. The driver did not know his truck was on fire until the flames shot up beside him. He then stopped the truck and jumped. The fire company was called and played two streams of chemical on the blaze which confined it to the front part of the truck, about half of the load of cardboard being damaged by both fire and water.

Just as the firemen were loading their hose to return to the fire house, a second call was sounded which led them to a barn blaze on the Bolton farm at Enlie. By the time they arrived at the fire it had almost burned to the ground. Three lines of hose had been laid through the meadow to a small stream by three other companies. South Langhorne offered assistance but nothing more could be done, so they returned to South Langhorne. Other companies responding were Hulmeville, Headley Manor, Fallington and Bristol. The barn and crops were totally destroyed.

A slight auto accident occurred on the Lincoln Highway and Durham Road on Saturday afternoon, when W. B. Cornell, the local butcher, ran into

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough of Killanmaul, Ireland, emigrates to America and is followed by Sheila Kildare, to whom he is betrothed, and her father, Sheila becomes friends with the O'Shea family who live in the same tenement and meets Rory O'Shea, who is a professional boxer. Rory is about to retire from the ring but is matched with Campeau. He invites Sheila to go to Coney Island and she accepts although both her father and Murtough object.

"Maybe 'tis too busy he is to be blarneying with a lot of good-for-nothings," defended Sheila pointedly.

"He can't amount to much in the district if he doesn't belong," said Emmett. "The biggest an' the best men in the neighborhood belong to the West Side Club."

"An' if that's the truth then I'm sure that Rory O'Shea belongs," returned Sheila tartly, "for the O'Sheas are the best people living on the street."

With that parting shot Sheila left the two braggarts to their tea and whiskey and went to bed to dream of Killanmaul, the fortune teller at Knockbotherum Fair, her new home in America and a bit about the young man who did not boast as other men she had known and who talked so engagingly about the wonderful places to be visited in this great and awe-inspiring city.

"I think I'll have to be meeting this Rory," commented Emmett Murtough sourly as Sheila passed into the inner room.

"He lives with his old man down the stairs," explained Old Tom. "Sheila met up with the mother at marketing an' so they became acquainted. Then she told them that I should be at work an' she says they will try to get me a job. But I told her that I must be something suited to my talents. (I do no laboring work," he declared emphatically.

"Now if ye only belonged to the Club," speculated Emmett.

"Take me up there an' I'll join it," promised Old Tom. "Sure an' 'tis Tom Kildare an' his son-in-law that should be running the ward, eh, Emmett," the older man laughed. "An' by the way, my boy, if Sheila has been taking a liking to this Rory, now, 'tis time ye began to speak to her seriously."

"But I can't be married until I've got my big chance an' made good," protested Emmett.

"Sure, that'll come to ye soon now, what with your connections," sympathized Kildare.

So these two impractical men talked of impossible successes with neither giving a thought to the needs of his own future or of the future of the girl whom each professed to love, one as the father, the other as a childhood lover.

It was a gay Sheila who awakened her father with snatches of song of the homeland the next morning. Quickly she straightened up the little apartment and before even Old Tom could question the food for the midday meal was steaming slowly in the kettle on the stove. And while the stewed meat was simmering in the pot Sheila spent a full hour in dressing. All the charm of her blossomed in her merriment and the girlish pride with which she decked herself out for the holiday.

Even Old Tom complimented her as they sat down at the table.

"Sure, an' 'tis beautiful ye are the day, Sheila," he said with his old-time gallantry and gentleness.

"Go on with yer blarney," laughed Sheila. "But 'tis good to know that ye appreciate yer daughter, so it is, Misther Kil-

Radicals Meet Death In Well-Guarded Prison

during his long stay in the death house. He had eaten and slept the long days and nights away. He even had to be awakened three hours before his execution to be informed that this was his last night on earth and having heard it, he turned over and was asleep again in five minutes. He marched stolidly to the chair and died without a murmur. Nobody rioted or tossed bombs in his behalf.

The scene at Charlestown Prison probably was without parallel in American criminology.

Eight hundred police and State police, armed with riot guns, riot clubs and .45 automatics, encircled the old prison in a ring of steel. Backing them up were machine guns mounted atop the walls. Powerful searchlights sprayed the adjacent streets to seek out possible trouble. For four blocks around the prison the streets were roped off, and nobody was permitted to enter without a pass signed by Warden William Hendry, reinforced by a police permit.

Just on the main gate a temporary press room had been established with special wires leading to many cities, and in this restricted space three score perspiring reporters and telegraphers labored to inform the world as to how Sacco and Vanzetti died.

BILLY'S UNCLE

The flash of their successive deaths was bulletined in London, Paris and other world capitals almost as soon as it was in New York and Chicago.

Several miles away, in a closely guarded office on the third floor of the Capitol, sat Governor Alvan T. Fuller, whose official duties for more than a month past have been largely confined to this world-famous case. Grim-faced and resolute, the Governor remained at his desk until thirteen minutes past midnight. At that hour, Madeiros was dead and Sacco was on his last short march to earthly oblivion.

RIVERSIDE

Here's a challenge: See "The Bat," which came to the Riverside Theatre last night for a two-night run, and if you can fathom the identity of the title character before the exposure in the final scenes, you are one in a million.

For "The Bat," both as a stage play and as the generation's outstanding mystery melodrama, has baffled millions of people throughout the world.

The cinema version of the Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood stage success was produced by Roland West, genius of screen thrillers such as "The Unknown Purple" and "The Monster."

Some of the notables in the all-star cast are Jewel Carmen, Jack Pickford, Louise Fazenda, Emily Fitzroy, Robert McKim, Tullio Carminati, Eddie Gribbon, Andre de Beranger, Lee Shumway, Charles Herzinger, Arthur Houseman and Sojin, noted Oriental actor.

Downing Warmly Greeted

Mr. Downing, along with the other Republican candidates attended a regular meeting of the club, which was followed by a social. The club members expressed their satisfaction with Mr. Downing's candidacy and pledged to him their heartiest co-operation. He thanked them for what the membership had already done in his behalf.

Yes... in all four corners of the earth!

THE FOLLOWING IS QUOTED, BY PERMISSION, FROM A LETTER OF MR. A. J. BARKER, ST. LOUIS, DATED MAY 10th, 1927

"It will be, I have no doubt, a source of gratification to you to know that Chesterfield cigarettes were on sale and, at that, the leading American seller, in all parts of the world.

"We started our trip on December 2nd, and visited among other points—Madeira Island... Gibraltar... Monte Carlo... Algiers... Haifa... Jerusalem... Cairo... Naples... Suez...

Bombay... Java... Dutch Sumatra... Singapore... Manila... Hongkong... Shanghai... Peking... Kobe... Tokyo... Honolulu... the Canal Zone... Havana and home.

"Not only was Chesterfield the leading American cigarette at all points visited, but it was the best seller (all brands) on our ship, the Empress of Scotland."
